Restore our Voting Rights

Pass The
John Lewis Voting Rights
Advancement Act

The principle that all individuals have equal value and should have equal rights and opportunities is foundational to democracy. In America, we believe in the freedom to decide our future — whether it's choosing leaders who will fight for affordable housing, better jobs, and quality healthcare, or holding those in power accountable. But this fundamental freedom is under threat in various ways. Some politicians are trying to roll back voting rights because they fear the power of our voices.

JLVRAA seeks to restore and strengthen portions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 that the U.S. Supreme Court struck down or weakened in several decisions. The JLVRAA would return the Voting Rights Act to full strength by holding states accountable when they attempt to disenfranchise voters and restore voters' ability to challenge discriminatory changes to voting practices.

By defending our right to vote, we're standing up for the freedom, fairness, and opportunity that everyone deserves.
